HARDING SEES ARMS CONFERENCE SUCCESSPRESIDENT TELLS CONGRESS
ARMS PARLEY MAKES PROGRESS;
DISCUSSES A "WORLD PROGRAM"

Says United States Will Aid in Restoration of Stable Conditions Throughout the World—Urges Cooperative Market to Aid Agriculture, Larger Merchant Marine and Plan to Settle Labor Controversies

Washington, Dec. 6.—President Harding informed Congress today in his first annual message that "a most gratifying world accomplishment" by the armament conference "is not improbable." The message was delivered by the President in person in the chamber of the house and in the presence of the delegates to the conference and most of the diplomats regularly stationed in Washington.

At the outset the President discussed world conditions saying "a world restoration program" would have to be worked out by the nations more directly concerned.

The United States will help, he added, unselfishly because there is compensation in the consciousness of assisting; selfishly because the commerce and international exchanges in trade which marked our high tide of fortune advancement are possible only when the nations of all continents are restored to stable order and normal relationship.

Urges Tariff Enactment

Returning to domestic problems the President urged enactment of the permanent tariff and foreign debt refunding bill. He also announced that later on he would make some recommendation about renewed consideration of the tax program involving further reductions and the abolition of "hindering burdens." He also suggested consideration by Congress of an amendment to the Constitution to end the issue of non-taxable bonds.

With regard to the merchant marine Mr. Harding said it was the purpose to present a plan which "contemplates no greater draft upon the public treasury and which though yet too crude to offer it today gives much promise of expanding our merchant marine that it will argue its own approval."

Encourages Co-op. Marketing

"Proper encouragement" for the cooperative marketing program as a means of assisting in the relief of present conditions in agriculture was suggested by the executive. He also told the Congress that it should give its "earnest attention" to a general policy of transportation of distributed industry and highway construction to encourage the spread of the population and restore the balance between city and country.

Other recommendations included:

Plans of conference of common council of mediation and arbitration and judicial determination of controversies between capital and labor.

Federal aid by way of advances for reclamation of lands where state and private participation is assured.

An appropriation necessary to supply the American relief administration in Russia with 10,000,000 bushels of corn and 1,000,000 bushels of seed grain.

The Congress to which the President delivered his message assembled in regular session yesterday.

L. P. McANENEY
IN NEW POST

Goes to War Finance Corporation in Washington, D. C.

L. P. McAneney, director of credits of the Bank of North Dakota, went to Washington, D. C., today to accept a position with the War Finance Corporation. Mr. McAneney, after receiving the Washington offer, resigned his position with the Bank of North Dakota.

Mr. McAneney was chosen one of three representatives from the Ninth Federal Reserve district to pass upon loans made by the War Finance Corporation. The three, it is understood, will comprise a board to assist Eugene Mayer, director of the War Finance Corporation. Mr. McAneney will particularly look after North Dakota interests. The new position pays a salary of $7,500 a year.

Mr. McAneney formerly was a deputy state examiner and chief deputy state examiner, and has been director of credits of the Bank of North Dakota, dealing with banks in the state.

Mr. McAneney's family will remain in Bismarck and he will retain his residence in North Dakota.

He was selected for the position upon recommendation by the Minneapolis War Finance office and has had the offer under consideration for the last few days.

Mr. McAneney has been prominent in Masonic circles here. He is a Shriner.

PLAN TO JOIN
RECEIVERSHIPS
OF MANY BANKS

State Guaranty Fund and Banking Board Would Reduce Number Employed

AIM TO CUT EXPENSES

Protest Made Against One Receiver Who is Called Before State Board

Consolidation of receiverships of many closed banks in the state for the purpose of gaining economy and greater efficiency in handling their affairs is under consideration by the Guaranty Fund Commission and the State Banking Board. It was stated officially today.

Under the proposed plan about 25 receivers would be eliminated and approximately 20 retained. In some cases, under the proposed plan, one receiver would have as many as five banks under his control, but in some isolated cases a receiver would have but one bank under his jurisdiction. Legal phases of the matter now are being investigated and when a report is completed the Guaranty Fund Commission again will be summoned in meeting to take up details of putting the proposed plan in operation. The decision follows conferences of the boards extending over several days.

Under the proposed plan five closed banks in Renville county would be placed under one receiver, who would employ collectors to aid in his work. All closed banks tributary to New England would be placed under one receiver. The consolidation would be carried as far as deemed practicable.

Effect Reopenings

A number of the closed banks, it is expected, will reopen in the near future and in these cases the receiverships would not be embraced in the consolidation.

Another feature of the proposed plan is that salaries of the receivers would be fixed by the banking board. The statutory salary of a receiver is $10 a day. In most cases at present, it is stated, receivers are getting this salary, but not in all cases. The expense of receivership would be reduced considerably in saving upon salaries, it is stated.

Complain of Receiver

Complaint was made to the state banking board late yesterday of the services of H. J. Oberman, receiver for the Citizens State Bank of Edgley, A. G. Porter, Edgley attorney; W. E. Muffin, Fargo attorney; and Ralph Hall and Dr. L. B. Green presented the protests, saying that Oberman had not had much banking experience and was not qualified for the position. Oberman, an Ellendale resident, was named receiver on recommendation of O. F. Loftus, former state examiner, it was said. The protesters alleged the appointment was made for political reasons. The banking board will hold a hearing on Thursday, and the receiver will be summoned before the board.

Labor Assembly Here Adopts Resolution To This Effect

The Trades and Labor Assembly of Bismarck, in meeting last night, appointed a committee to investigate labor costs on houses built by the state. Homebuilders Association and to submit a report of their investigation.

Members of the assembly who supported the appointment of the committee declared the labor had been unjustly accused of "laying down" on the job on the state-built houses. They reported instances of where persons for whom the houses were built or ordered numerous changes which increased the cost, and agreed that there was inefficiency in the management of the association.

Speakers declared that there never were any better built houses than the state-built houses.

TWO NEW SUITS
IN ARBUCKLE'S
CASE IN COURT

Liquor Violation and Perjury Charges Are Considered in Two Courts

San Francisco, Dec. 6.—Two courts were concerned yesterday with the manslaughter trial of Roscoe C. (Pat) Arbuckle which ended in a disagreement. In the commissioners' division of the United States district court, an appearance was made for Arbuckle in answer to a prohibition violation charge and simultaneously in the police court, Mrs. Minnie Neighbors, witness for the defense in the manslaughter trial, appeared in a perjury charge in connection with her testimony.

A preliminary hearing was waived by the defense on the prohibition charge and the Neighbors' case was continued until Wednesday. Previous to the calling of these cases, District Attorney Brady announced that he was investigating information that an attempt was made to intimidate Mrs. Helen M. Hubbard, one of the jurors in the manslaughter trial. She voted for conviction consistently.

Brady said he might present the matter to the grand jury for an exhaustive inquiry.

Police Lieutenant William Lambert, mentioned in connection with the intimidation charge, was asked by Chief of Police O'Brien to make a full statement. The prohibition violation charge arose out of the serving and consumption of liquor at the party in Arbuckle's rooms in the Hotel St. Francis September 6, during which he is alleged to have injured Miss Virginia Rapp, motion picture actress.

Gus Oliva, commission merchant, denied today that he telephoned to Mrs. Hubbard's husband asking that the latter send a note to his wife in the jury room advising her to change her vote from conviction to acquittal. Hubbard said yesterday some one representing himself to be Oliva had given him such a message over the telephone.

Oliva said he had been ill feeling between his brother, Sid Oliva, and himself and his brother, Sid Oliva, on the other hand, that once he had Hubbard arrested.

Mrs. Hubbard was once a book-keeper to the Oliva.

BRIDGE WORKER
FALLS 60 FEET
TO ICE BELOW

Ernest Pfeiffer Plunges From Floor of Missouri River Bridge to River

LIFE HANGS IN BALANCE

Leg, Shoulder and Arm Broken in Fall Sustained While Working

The life of Ernest Pfeiffer, 22, of Duluth, Minn., hangs in the balance today.

He plunged 60 feet from the Missouri river bridge to the ice in the river below. He was horribly injured, but physicians today expressed hope that he would survive if he can withstand the terrible shock for the next two or three days.

Pfeiffer was working on the floor span of the bridge yesterday and was engaged in riveting. He and other workmen had just finished some work. Pfeiffer, a friend said, was a jolly young fellow, weighing 182 pounds, powerful and expert in his work. He had just finished telling a story, they said. He jumped for another beam, four or five feet away. He missed his footing, caught hold of the beam with his right arm, but the force of the fall broke his hold.

Fellow workmen saw him plunge head foremost toward the ice below. Just before he struck the ice, they said, he turned over and struck the ice on his back. The force of the impact was so great that he rebounded three feet in the air, they said. Many rushed to his aid on the ice, which was not broken by the fall. They asked him if he felt pain. He replied that he did not but remarked: "I'm hurt pretty bad." He was rushed to a hospital and physicians were called.

Suffered Many Injuries
The exact extent of his injuries has not been determined because of his condition, but it is said he suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, a compound fracture of an arm and a broken shoulder. He may be hurt internally.

Pfeiffer had made many friends in Bismarck. Conversing with a friend the other day he was asked if the work was not dangerous. He replied with a laugh that all he had suffered, thus far, was a broken finger.

The accident to Pfeiffer is the most serious suffered since the American Bridge company began erecting steel on the new bridge.

ENGLAND RECOGNIZES IRELAND AS INDEPENDENT STATE; IRISH TO SWEAR ALLEGIANCE TO THE KING

Conference Which Appeared to Have Collapsed, Unexpectedly Evolves Plan For Settlement of Difficulties in Early Hours of Morning—Ulster's Consent Said Not Necessary in Settlement Which is to go Before Parliament and Dail Eireann

London, Dec. 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—England and Ireland awoke today from a troubled sleep of despondency over the Irish situation to learn the joyous news of a sensational and wholly unexpected agreement reached between the English and Irish conferences in today's small hours.

The negotiations for a settlement were considered yesterday to have definitely collapsed and the compromise achieved in Premier Lloyd George's somber, little official home in Downing street after a night-long struggle seems likely to be chronicled as the most momentous event in the history of Anglo-Irish relations.

While the agreement must still be submitted to the Dail Eireann and the British parliament for ratification there was a disposition in all quarters in London today to regard the outlook as of the brightest.

The agreement reached binds both sides to recommend it to their parliaments. It is a formal detailed and conclusive document and its terms prevent the necessity for further negotiations.

To Call Parliament

Should the Dail Eireann agree to the document, and a disagreement is not looked for, the points raised by the Sinn Fein will be embodied in a bill and submitted to the British parliament which is expected to be called in special session to consider it.

The consent of Ulster is not required to make the new Irish agreement effective. She is given the opportunity of withdrawal in a month reverting then to her present status within territory to be decided by a boundary commission.

A provisional government will be formed in southern Ireland while the British parliament is considering the agreement.

Ireland Independent State
On the question of allegiance a form of words was found which satisfied both the government and the Sinn Fein. The recognition of Ireland as an independent state is said to be clear.

The principle at last adopted by the government is said to have been that of trusting Ireland fully and giving her powers of decision without hampering her by conditions.

The agreement was signed on behalf of the government by Prime Minister Lloyd George, Austin Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and Winston Spencer Churchill and on behalf of the Sinn Fein by Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins and Robert C. Barton.

ABANDONS TRIP
London, Dec. 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Prime Minister Lloyd George has abandoned his intention to visit Washington owing to the early meeting of parliament to act on the Irish settlement, it was stated this afternoon.

PROVIDE FOR FREE STATE
London, Dec. 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Evening Standard says the government's proposals for an Irish settlement upon which agreement was reached this morning provide for a free state, withdrawal of all military forces from Ireland and safeguards which will insure peaceful conditions.

Definite promise of allegiance to the empire by the Sinn Fein is provided in the Irish peace terms, the Central News states. The agreement, it says, is satisfactory to the King in that it involves Ireland's association with the empire.

ULSTER RESERVES EXPRESSION

Belfast, Dec. 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Official circles today showed a disposition to reserve comment on the reported Irish agreement until the terms became known. Political leaders, however, are said to regard any compromise between the British and Sinn Fein delegates as defeat for Ulster. The views of the parties to the peace negotiations, they say, are so irreconcilable that it is difficult to imagine that what will appeal to the Sinn Fein will be regarded as satisfactory to Ulster.

J. D. Kennedy Expected To Again Take Stand to Identify Letters

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—J. D. Kennedy, father of J. Belton Kennedy for whose murder Arthur C. Bush is on trial, was expected to again take the witness stand upon the opening of court today and identify more letters alleged to have been written by the younger Kennedy by Mrs. Madeline O'Brien, jointly indicted with Bush.

Twelve letters already have been identified by the older Kennedy as having been found among his son's effects, while Milton Carlson, handwriting expert, testified they and 24 more were in his opinion written by Mrs. O'Brien.

The letters which were of an affectionate nature covered a period of four years immediately preceding the slaying of Kennedy at Beverly Glen, a suburb, August 5 last.

ELKS ANNUAL TRIBUTE PAID

Memorial Services Held in Eltinge Theater Sunday

Eltinge theater was well filled Sunday afternoon when the Elks' annual memorial services were held. Tribute to the memory of 26 departed brothers was paid by the lodge.

The ritualistic ceremony of the lodge was conducted by P. R. Fields, exalted ruler, and other officers, following invocation by Father Slag and an organ prelude by Harry L. Wagner. A quartette composed of Mrs. R. A. Tracey and Mrs. R. E. Morris, and Mr. Harverson and Mr. Humphreys sang, with Genevieve Menard-Hughes as accompanist.

I. C. Davies delivered a eulogy to the members of the departed brother, and spoke of the principles of the Elks order, emphasizing particularly that to be an Elk one must believe in the Supreme Being, but no discrimination is made as to creed; that the Elks stands for America and American institutions and that its work of charity is not accompanied by publicity.

Members of Bismarck lodge No. 1199, B. P. O. E. who have passed away since founding of the order are: E. K. Allensworth, H. A. Barwind, H. R. Berndt, J. L. Bjork, J. A. Dawson, A. W. Eppinger, S. L. BIG BARBECUE ATTRACTS MANY

Coyote Drive Conducted South Of City On Sunday

Nearly 200 people, half of them from Bismarck, joined in the coyote drive conducted south of the city yesterday. The hunters didn't have much success in killing coyotes but Billy Mienear, of Bismarck, had great success in preparing the big barbecue which rewarded the hunters after the finish of the drive.

The drive started from the Twin Butte stock farm about 10 a. m., covered six or seven miles and ended at the Peter Hiltner's place about 1 p. m. Five coyotes were seen and some of them were wounded, but none were captured. Many rabbits were killed. Two bucks were seen but not harmed. The steer was from the Irvin Reid place. Farmers in the vicinity, who have lost $1,000 to $1,200 worth of chickens and turkeys in the past year from depredations of coyotes, provided the steer which Mr. Mienear barbecued. The hunters declared the meat was the finest ever tasted.

The drive may be repeated in the near future.

SEEK ESCAPED IOWA CONVICT

Officers Come to North Dakota to Take Back Charles Welling

Return to Iowa of Charles Welling, alias Smith, who is charged with killing a policeman at Kenmare, is asked in a requisition of the governor of Iowa, brought here Sunday by two officers.

Welling is an escaped lifer from the Ft. Madison, Iowa, state prison. The two officers came here a few weeks ago to obtain his return but the attorney general asked that he be kept in North Dakota in an effort to obtain further information from him. The state's attorney at Minot has expressed willingness to permit him to be taken back to Iowa.

CONGRESS BACK IN SESSION ON 7-MONTH GRIND

which would be scrapped under the proposal made to the conference by the American government.

Accompanying the budget as sent to congress is a detailed report from Director General Dawes as to the operation of the budget bureau since its establishment five months ago and some pointed comments as to means of continuing its efficient operation. Discussing the reception of the budget by congress, General Dawes says: "It is to be expected that since the preliminary estimates have been made under pressure by the executive for proper retrenchment, where consistent with efficiency, it will not be necessary, as heretofore, for congress to make radical cuts upon the estimates of the budget with any uncertainty as to what will be the result as it affects efficiency. The president of the United States, when he sends the budget to congress is presumed to send it with all the reductions in expenditures which can be effected without due impairment of governmental business processes. In the preparation of the budget he has had at work an authorized agency in the bureau not only in ascertaining the reasonableness of desired appropriations, but in continually imposing pressure upon the departments for a reduction in the estimates wherever proper and possible."

General Dawes says he feels that the estimate for expenditures for 1931, upon which the budget is based, "will not be increased except through appropriations initiated by congress or by the executive as a result of emergency or unforeseen conditions arising after the preparation of the budget."

Reiterating his recommendation that congress immediately repeal all outstanding continuous appropriations and "revolving funds," General Dawes says the method of appropriating money heretofore followed "has resulted in a condition of things under which it is almost impossible for either the executive, congress, or the secretary of the treasury to have before them a true picture of the fiscal condition of the government at any particular time."

"The whole habit of making continuous appropriations to which the government has been committed in the past," he adds, "is only an encouragement to a lack of scrutiny in public work by the head of the department under which it is carried on, and an encouragement to shiftlessness and carelessness on the part of the subordinates more directly concerned in it. This system of propo-ing the budget will confine the attention of the executive, of congress, and of the public to the one great important question, to wit, the relation of the money actually to be spent by the government to the money actually to be received by the government in any given year, all its outstanding obligations and indefinite commitments, projects, and enterprises considered. This will enable congress, with more intelligence, to determine at any time both the necessity for retrenchment and the ability of the government to engage in additional projects to be initiated by congress outside of the budgetary provisions.

Like the federal government to a business corporation, General Dawes points to these "faults" which he says existed:

The president of the corporation (the president of the United States) gave practically no attention to its ordinary routine business.

The administrative vice-presidents (members of the cabinet) were allowed to run their several departments as if each separate department was an independent authority in all matters of routine business.

Because of a lack of any outlined business plan, no system existed for making purchases or in selling material along business lines under an unified policy.

No balance sheet of the corporation as a whole was ever prepared.

The treasurer kept no accurate account of the contingent obligations of the various federal departments, thus resulting in money being drawn from him continuously in excess of the estimated annual running expenses.

The corporation, in effect, seldom reconsidered an unwise project entered into by any department.

The administrative heads of the departments were selected as a rule with little reference to their business qualifications and were compelled to rely largely upon the advice of subordinates "wedded to the theory of the right of independent operation of the department."

Outlining the work of the various coordinating agencies established by presidential order "to rectify faults in the routine business of the government," General Dawes says:

"They involve no transfer of authority the location of which has been fixed otherwise by statute.

"They involve the delegation of no questions of policy save that of economy and efficiency."

"They are simply agents by which unified methods of ordinary business can be imposed by the chief executive."

"They are created simply to give the president of the United States, the same agencies of contact and transmission of authority as obtain in any private organization."

"They involve no material addition to the expense of governmental administration."

"They are nonpartisan, being composed of men already in the government service."

"They are in effect simply a regrouping under an executive leadership of certain of the present employees of government of such experience, contact, and relation in its routine business as enables them to make possible the application of common-sense business methods."

"It cannot be too often reiterated that this most important reformation in the governmental business system is dependent upon the president of the United States himself, and upon his continued assumption of his responsibility as its business head. The minute he realizes his attitude of attention to his duty there will be felt the natural pull of the departments and establishments toward the old system of complete independence and decentralization."

General Dawes concludes his report with this statement:

"In making this report the director of the budget will state that his connection with the bureau is limited as to time, in accordance with an understanding which he had with the president at the time of his appointment. His purpose in making this announcement at this time is to emphasize the fact that his recommendations are made in an impersonal way, with fundamental business principles and their proper preservation in their application to governmental business administration alone in mind."

Miss Downey Addresses Club at Valley City

Miss Mary E. Downey, librarian and director of the North Dakota Library Commission has returned from Valley City, where she opened the County Library Campaign before the Community club.

Miss Downey told how the county library movement had evolved from the earliest suggestions of public libraries in the United States. She traced it through the Franklin subscription libraries, the tax supported public library, state library extension and the strides of library development as shown at the great expositions, the Centennial of Philadelphia, the World's Fair in Chicago, the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis and the Pan-American in San Francisco.

Miss Downey then traced the direct history of the County Library idea from its early beginning in an Indiana home in 1816, through Maryland, Ohio, and across the continent, showing how the work had developed in the twenty-five states now operating under it. She dealt especially on California, where most of the counties in the state are operating this system. The plan of organization was given and the means of distribution through branches, stations, the use of the telephone and parcel post and the auto book wagon.

The talk was illustrated with maps, the final one showing the present North Dakota situation which led to an account of what a county library law would do for North Dakota and the points covered by a good law.

The club was asked to co-operate with other agencies in bringing a bill providing for county libraries before the next session of the North Dakota legislature. Such a law would give the square deal for reading opportunity to the man, woman and child of the county, which is now enjoyed by city people, under the municipal library law.

Mrs. Zuger in Charge Campaign Plans Here

Club women of Bismarck and of North Dakota are much interested in the campaign against illiteracy now being carried on within the state. Extracts from a paper written by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart of Kentucky will be of interest to many women in the city.

Next to the teachers, the club women of the state have the most heroic part to play in North Dakota's Illiteracy Crusade. The club women can discuss illiteracy in programs before the club during this year, abandoning if necessary some topic less vital. They can talk against illiteracy in their daily conversation when calling, when attending social functions, when on the train or wherever they may be. Make illiteracy and its removal the principle topic of conversation.

Among the club women of North Dakota are many former school teachers. All the club women who are mothers have done some teaching among their own children in their beginning days of school. Teaching illiterates is easy and will be a task that will delight you. Every club woman in North Dakota should teach one illiterate. Some will teach a class in their home or an evening school. Books and plans will be furnished by Mrs. Alfred Zuger, of Bismarck, who has been appointed by the state department of education to represent the club women in the Illiteracy Crusade.

In the number of illiterates in the counties of the state Bismarck county ranks 32nd. There are 132 illiterates in the county. In the list of large cities in the state Bismarck is ranked seventh with 52.

MARRIED HERE.
Of interest to many friends is the news of the wedding of Miss Lena Singbeil and John Elihi, both of Bismarck, at St. Mary's parish house last week. Rev. Slag officiated. Although they were married last week they managed to keep it secret until Saturday when their friends gave a surprise party for them. They will make their home with the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Anton Beer.

WRONG SIDE OUT? OH, NO!

(By Marian Hale)
New York, Dec. 5.—No. Dear, the lady hasn't her dress on wrong side out.
That is, the wrong side is the right side.
It's all the style to make up satin crepe with "inside out."
The fad started in Paris and our smart dressers coming home from the Rue de la Paix all have at least one satin crepe dress with the glossy side concealed.
In America the fad has been repeated, although the popular satin crepe in this country holds its sheeny brightness still in favor.
Satin crepe, one of the most popular materials, is worn both reversed and right side out.
The stunning gown is of "Molly O" satin crepe, which is lustrous and soft. The gown shown here is "outside out with care."
It is made along the Greek lines, which are so graceful, with the American touch showing in the long tassels at the side and on the sleeves.

Thursday afternoon, of this week. All who have articles and donations for the Christmas sale are asked to bring them to the meeting.

GIRL SCOUTS MEET.
Bismarck Girl Scouts Troop No. 1 will hold their regular meeting at the parish house of St. George's Episcopal church tomorrow evening. The meeting has been called for 8:15 instead of the usual meeting hour of 7:30 o'clock.

TO CHICAGO.
Allen F. McLean, who for the past several months has made his home in Bismarck, left this morning for Chicago. Mr. McLean was resident engineer of the American Bridge company for the Missouri river bridge here.

LIGHT BEARERS MEET.
The Light Bearers of the Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. All children between the ages of 8 and 12 are invited to come.

LADIES AID MEETING.
The Ladies Aid of the First Lutheran church will meet at the church parlors, Thursday afternoon, December 6. Members and friends of the society are urged to be present at this meeting.

TO CALIFORNIA.
Levi E. Jensen of Reno, N. D., who for the past few days has been visiting in Bismarck, left today for Los Angeles, California, where he will spend the winter.

VISITING HERE.
Mrs. John O. Hanchett and daughter Esther, of Harvey, N. D., are visiting in the city, guests at the C. M. Dahl home.

Scout Notes
Give Dinner For Benefit of Cabin

Bismarck Boy Scouts, Troop 2 of the Methodist church are planning a dinner to be given at the Methodist church on Friday evening from 5:30 to 8 o'clock. William Noggle, B. M. Dunn and H. S. Lobuch, assistant scout masters of the troop are in charge of the dinner. Captain Baker donated land to the Troop to build their Scout cabin on and arrangements are now being made to build the cabin. The proceeds of the dinner will go towards the erection of a scout cabin on the land donated by Captain Baker.

Captain Baker has been made an honorary member of the troop. There are 22 members of the troop and nearly all are first class scouts. George E. Wallace is scoutmaster.

The boys are now busy selling tickets for the supper.

EPISCOPAL SCOUT NOTES.
We are pleased to place on record that this troop has now four first class scouts, namely Richard Dewhurst, Vernice Smart, Gerald Hunter and Jesse Scroggins. There are many more to follow.

An installation ceremony will be held two weeks from next Monday when a number of the scouts will receive their badges. Some of the first class scouts are qualifying for merit badges.

An entertainment of minstrel type will be given in the near future.

Richard Penwarden tendered his resignation as Troop Scribe at the meeting last night. This was regretfully accepted and thanks were rendered to him for his past work. Jesse Scroggins received the largest number of votes for the office in the ensuing election and was duly installed to his responsible office. We predict great things for him.

Richard Penwarden is the editor of a "live" paper called the Athletic Review. It reflects great credit on its editor and bespeaks a great future for him.

TROOP SIX.
Thank You, Mr. Ward.
Bible Ward has given us leave to build a cabin on his land, cutting down the trees on his land to build it. We all feel tickled and certainly vote him a "good scout".

George Wieble began work on the cottage Monday and promises it to us complete (except what we have to do ourselves) inside of two weeks.

Several of the boys, including Bill Lenhart, Fritz Wanner and Bob Nuesle cleared off the brush for our cabin Saturday.

Norris Fitch and Bus Thompson are going right after their merit badges. Last week they built a bridge and have already had some hikes.

Since the high school basketball team started practicing regularly we lost out on our Thursday night innings there.

JEALOUSIES IN EUROPE ABOUND SAYS DR. HARLAN

Speaks to Audience at First Baptist Church on Conditions Abroad

Dr. Roivix Harlan, secretary of the Rural Community work of the Northern Baptist convention spoke to a full house last night at the Baptist church. He has recently returned from a trip to Europe where he delivered the John Clifford lectures in England, and made a short visit to Germany, France, Belgium and Czechoslovakia. The subject of the address was, "Can Europe Turn the Corner?" Dr. Harlan found in his visit that Europe is in a terrible situation, much more serious than we have been accustomed to think from reports we have read of European countries. He says that there is almost unspeakable jealousies between the countries, especially in the Balkans.

Dr. Harlan was surprised at the intelligence of the long oppressed peoples. He thinks they will, under the liberal government which they have set up, become a real power intellectually and morally.

Dr. Harlan talked to nearly two dozen men at a dinner last evening on the imperative need of men getting together for the purpose of cultivating fellowship and understanding among themselves, and of learning of the real conditions of the world. He especially stressed the importance of organized and intensive study of the principles of the New Testament in connection with the present social and economic situation over the world.

There were present at the meetings Rev. Fred E. Stockton, secretary of North Dakota State Convention, Revs. Stolberg, Larson, Finwall and Jacobson, pastors-at-large, and the local Baptist ministers. Dr. Harlan left this morning in company with Rev. Stockton for a rural field about twenty miles west of Ryder where they will study the field in view of building a church suitable to the needs of the community.

"COINCIDENCE" IS SCREEN ATTRACTION

A real treat is in store for the patrons of the Bismarck Theater, beginning Thursday next, when the new Metro release, "Coincidence," will be the feature attraction. This picture makes its prime appeal as splendid entertainment through the snappy sparkling nature of the story that never flags in its hilarious movement from the first to the last.

"Coincidence" is presented with an all-star cast, including Robert Harron and June Walker, and features the mishaps of Billy Jenks, a socially ambitious young man, who goes to New York to make a name for himself and ends up by being arrested for burglary. Throughout the story the great and controlling influence of coincidence is shown molding the destiny of Billy Jenks from the moment that the money he is counting blows out of the window and falls at the feet of the girl he afterward falls in love with.

From this time on, Billy is beset by one coincidence after another, resulting in his inheritance of a large fortune, only to have it stolen from him by a polished crook, who seeks not only to defraud Billy of his wealth, but also to steal his girl, which he promptly accomplishes, save for Billy's timely arrival at the apartment where the blackguard has lurked her.

MARY PICKFORD AT THE ELTINGE

Mary Pickford will be seen first as a little Belgian girl when she comes to the Eltinge tomorrow in her new picture, "Through the Back Door," scheduled for a three days run.

The story opens at Ostend in 1903, then the gayest seashore resort in Belgium. Little Jeanne Rodamere and her pleasure-loving mother are summering at Ostend, where Madame Rodamere meets Elton Reeves, a wealthy New Yorker. After a whirlwind courtship Reeves and Madame Rodamere marry. Little Jeanne is consigned to the care of her nurse, Marie, for one year, against the mother's wishes and only because the new husband insists.

Five years pass before Mrs. Reeves returns for her little daughter. The old nurse, meanwhile has married and has come to regard little Jeanne as her own. She tells the mother the child is dead.

Meanwhile war breaks out in Europe. Fearing for Jeanne's safety, the nurse sends her to America with a note of explanation to her mother. Circumstances conspire to prevent Jeanne from presenting this note. She is forced to enter her mother's home as a servant through the back door. Thus ends the story of its name.

As an added attraction for these three days, the Eltinge announces the appearance of Antonio Minervini, piano-accompanist supreme, at both afternoon and evening shows. Antonio recently made appearances in all the theaters on the London & Von Herberg circuit on the coast and is on his way to the east to fill engagements.

CHINA INSISTS ON SHANTUNG

Washington, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Chinese delegation to the armament conference, it was learned today, has received explicit instructions from the Peking government not to recede from its position for the unconditional return of the Kiao-Chiao leasehold in Shantung and to protect China's interest in Manchuria.

It was said by Chinese spokesmen today that should the Shantung "conversations" result adversely to China's interests the delegation might have to consider withdrawing. It was emphasized there was no present intention of doing so.

COURT RULES ON PICKETING BY LABOR UNIONS

Washington, Dec. 6.—Picketing in connection with a labor strike is unjustifiable if carried to the point of "Importunity and dogging," the supreme court ruled late yesterday.

Decision as to whether specific instances of picketing come within the court's inhibition must be left for determination on the facts in each such case, but the court suggested that pickets should have the right of "observation, communication and persuasion," and might further be limited to "one representative for each point of ingress and egress."

The opinion of the court, which was read by Chief Justice Taft, was approved by all the associate justices except Mr. Clark, who did not state the grounds of his dissent.

The case arose out of a strike at the American Steel Foundries plant at Granite City, Ill., where 1,500 men were nationally employed.

YOU PAY-USE-LESS

Don't try to save money buying cheap or big-can Baking Powders. You can't do it. You'll throw out more in spoiled bakings than you save on price of the powder. And don't think that old style high priced powders are best because they cost most. They are not.

has proved in millions of bake-day tests that it is the best baking powder ever made—that's why it is the biggest selling baking powder in the world today. No other baking powder makes such temptingly good—tender, wholesome bakings. No baking powder of anywhere near the same quality is sold at such a low price.

You use less of Calumet—because it is the highest grade baking powder. One teaspoonful is equal to two teaspoonfuls of many other brands.

And there is no "luck" about it when you use Calumet. No loss. It is absolutely sure. It is the most economical of all. Millions of housewives use it—and so do leading domestic science teachers and cooking experts.

You save when you buy it.
You save when you use it.

Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authorities.

DE MORES' NAME IS LINKED WITH SHERIDAN HOUSE

Dashing Frenchman Was Frequent Guest at Famous Hotel in Pioneer Days

OLD MENU IS FOUND

Shows Nature of Banquet Put Up For Capital Commission Entertainment in 1883

Part of the romance invested around the Sheridan House here was due to the presence in this part of the country of the Marquis de Mores or Mores. A son of the Duchess de Valambrosa, he came to North Dakota in the days of the cattleman. Considered strange in that day by the people who knew little of the French, he now is looked upon as a man ahead of his times. His wife was Medora Van Hoffman of New York, a daughter of one of New York's early financiers. The town of Medora, farther west on the Northern Pacific stamps her name upon the history of the state while De Mores holds record of her husband. The Frenchman's grazing lands were close to the points where the two towns were located. DeMores is credited with having established the first plant for the killing of beef cattle and the shipping of chilled meats in refrigerator cars. His experience was not financially successful.

DeMores was in the Bad Lands at the time when Theodore Roosevelt, then a youngster just out of college, was spending his summers there. Roosevelt numbered his cattle by the hundreds and DeMores and his associates by the thousands, some herds of thirty thousand roaming the hills with the six to eight hundred of the embryonic president. One of the stories of the bad lands is that in one of the roundups, Roosevelt asked to be assigned to a place as a worker. His request was granted, but the assignment was at the far outskirts of the ranges, as far as possible from the scene of actual action. The roundup foreman who made the assignment lived to watch the discarded cowboy assume the duties of president, and in fact still is active in the life of the cattle country.

Filled With Tragedy. DeMores' life has been filled with tragedy. His experiences in the west were cut short when he was involved in the shooting of a cowboy, was held in jail here for a time and finally released. During these days his wife was a constant visitor at the jail, and her headquarters were at the hotel which was but a short distance away. DeMores later returned to France where he was distantly involved in the Breyins affair, then turned to the life of a pioneer again in French Africa and died following a turbulent career there.

Politics of the territory and the state centered for many years in the Sheridan House. When it was built, the Dakotas were one vast territory with the capitol at Yankton, now in South Dakota. Agitation was started to bring the capital nearer the territorial center of the vast district. The Sheridan House and the people of Bismarck entertained a commission appointed to relocate the capitol on May 23, 1883. This commission was empowered to select the new capitol city by the territorial legislature. Entertainment was the order of the day and from a satin booklet which graced the table as menu cards, it is found that the members of the commission fared in part as follows:

Meats: Spring Lamb, Loin of Prime Beef, Tame Goose, Young Pig, Tenderloin Steak, Shoulder of Venison, Loin of Mountain Sheep, Wild Goose, Roast Pigeon, Quail on Toast, Potted Pigeon, Plover on Toast, New Brunswick Salmon, Broiled Shad, Brook Trout.

Needless to say, Bismarck was selected as the territorial capitol and the first meeting here of the territorial legislature was in 1885. The Sheridan House was the center of the session life and most of the important questions to be considered were settled in private rooms within its boardered sides. Four years later the state was set apart and the interesting stage of territorial government was at an end.

Political Headquarters. The change in the government of North Dakota from territory to state did not change the Sheridan House status as the political headquarters. The building of the state capitol, a

"EVERYDAY" IS PLAY ALL MADE BY WOMEN

MARY DONNELLY, WHO PLAYS THE ROLE OF THE FLAPPER IN "EVERYDAY."

(By James W. Dean) New York, Dec. 6.—"Everyday" is an interesting contribution to the stage because it was written by a woman, produced by a woman, staged by a woman and the burden of its story is enacted by women. It is from the pen of Rachel Crothers. It is produced by Mary Kirkpatrick, a patron of the theater for several years, who for the first time announces herself as a producer. The first act of "Everyday" leads one to believe that here is about to be enacted another "Main Street."

A girl returns after five years of travel and education to "the best wired home in town." The second act dwells upon the dilemma of the girl choosing between a politician who can give her position and wealth and the son of a butcher who has talent and high ideals. work that progressed in three stages, the most important being the first with its corner stone brought to the house probably its most distinguished guests. General and former president Grant and Rutherford B. Hayes, then president were among the guests, and they were surrounded by a galaxy of noted men and women. It was at this time that the hotel, which was beginning to near the end of its day of romance put on its most brilliant dinners and its most resplendent decorations. In this event, the early time builders of the state, men whose shoulders stooped with the burdens of pioneering rubbed elbows with the nations greatest and it is the events of the corner stone laying that are most firmly impressed upon the minds of the people who remember the hotel through the mist of Indian romance, of military splendor, of gorgeous entertainments, of railroad pioneering and then on down through the uneventful years until the spirit that must have been created within the walls that had watched so much of passing years, released itself in one last blaze of splendor in an early morning fire.

MANDAN NOTES

Announcements have been received in Mandan of the wedding of Miss Olive Brownlee of Mapleton and Sydney W. Hooper of Fargo on Saturday, December 3, at the home of the bride. Mr. Hooper is connected with the publicity department of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

Miss Cecile Porter has returned from a two weeks visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Goodall, at their home at Sanish, N. D.

Miss Dorothy Walton, who has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. H. S. Russell and has been attending the Mandan high school, has left for Dickinson where she will visit at her home until the first of the year.

Little Robert Henderson, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Henderson of Jamestown, arrived in Mandan yesterday and will visit at the home of his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. A. O. Henderson and Mrs. A. Reley.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hunke have left for Helena, Mont., where the former will receive treatment.

FOREST WOUNDS IN EUROPE ARE BEING HEALED

French Ministry Takes Steps to Again Beautify Roads in Europe

Washington, Dec. 6.—American seedlings, fast growing into mighty trees, already are beginning to heal the war scarred areas of Europe. Not only are they being nurtured in France and Belgium but in Great Britain also and in Ireland.

The French ministry has ordered that the seedlings shall be located in places readily accessible to main traveled roads, and if possible, near well known sites "with the view that such future forests shall remain as a monument to the partnership of France and America in the Great War." The same sentiment also prevails in Great Britain which actually lost more forest cover than any other country by the sudden demands of war for materials. In Belgium, in the once beautiful Ardennes where the German axe left nothing standing the beautiful American Douglass fir is lifting its head.

Arthur Newton Pack of Princeton, N. J., has just made a report to the American Forestry Association, which supplies the seedlings, after a three months inspection of the plantings. He reports the trees everywhere are regarded as growing monuments to cordial relations between the allies in the great war. Pack's report shows that the seedlings have been planted along the Chemin des Dames, around Lille, Valenciennes and Hirson at the doors of reviving industry; in the Forest of Saint Gobain and around the ruins of the famous Comte de Chateau; in the Forest of Normal where in a 25,000 acre forest of pine and beech the German axe left nothing but the smallest saplings; in the Ardennes Mountains bordering the old duchy of Luxembourg, in County Tyrone, Ireland, where the best nursery showing of any planted by the British Forestry Commission has been made; and along the Caledonian Canal in Scotland is known to all the American Navy because it was there the American submarine chasers were mobilized.

More than 2,000,000,000 packages were handled by the U. S. parcel post service last year.

ADVICE FOR WOMEN WHO SUFFER

"I advise every woman who suffers with kidney trouble to try Foley Kidney Pills," writes Mrs. Beale Brown on 2522-Scottville Ave., Cleveland, O. Rheumatic pains, swollen ankles, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles and sleep disturbing bladder ailments indicate disordered kidneys. Foley Kidney Pills cure promptly.

VIOLATIONS OF DRY ACT LESS SAYS OFFICIAL

Smuggling of Whiskey From Border a Hard Job

Rum running, illegal manufacture of liquor and violations of the national prohibition act generally are on the wane in North Dakota, according to Lane Moloney, field division head of the federal forces in this state. Several factors have contributed to drive from the state men who earn their livelihood by smuggling whiskey across the Canadian border, chief among them being the close cooperation of federal, state and county authorities to break up the illicit traffic, Moloney said. But the runners have not abandoned their operations, merely shifted to territory less dangerous to their liberty and life. The federal prohibition department has five workers in North Dakota exclusive of the field head and their efficient cooperation with the state's forces of varying number and sheriffs of every county through which roads frequented by the runners led has resulted in more than 90 per cent decrease in the traffic this year, Moloney estimates.

Another fact that has acted as a deterrent on ambitious runners, he said, has been the high mortality rate among their ranks, six having been killed in gun fights with officials and several others wounded in the course of the past year. The federal forces have not suffered in this respect, he said.

Most of the runners, he said, have transferred their operations from North Dakota to Montana and the Red River Valley in Minnesota, while others have shifted to running alcohol between Chicago and St. Paul and from Louisville, Ky., to points north. "Then, too, many of the runners have left the game, voluntarily or otherwise," Moloney said. "Some of them have realized that the return is too small compared with the risk and the amount of money they must invest."

"For every man who has made his fortune in this illegal business a hundred others have lost all they had and some of them are in addition serving sentences in prison. Others who engaged officials in gun fights have recovered only after long sieges in hospitals and will be crippled for the rest of their lives. The game doesn't pay and some of the more intelligent runners are beginning to find it out."

Moloney cited what he called "only the greater costs" which a runner must consider before starting operations.

"Say a man in Omaha is going to start running whiskey," he said. "He buys a high powered car for $4,500, then in Canada he gets 30 cases of whiskey for $50 a case, an investment of $6,000, not counting his time and hardships and those of his partner, and the necessary expenses of the trip which are heavy. Then he must figure a $500 fine which is the least punishment if caught and probably $1,000 for attorney's fees to fight the case. If he gets through he probably can sell his load of whiskey for $8,000. Obviously the returns to be had from such a following have been grossly overrated."

Moloney declared that rum running operations in North Dakota have been less prevalent during the past summer and fall than ever before, and that the intensified activity of a year ago when daily reports told of automobiles, heavily laden with the contraband, passing through various localities had not been repeated this year.

"Whiskey running in and through North Dakota has shown an appreciable decrease," he said, "and it will continue to show a decrease." The weight of the counties against the rum runners has been felt through the operations of sheriffs of counties traversed by the whiskey smugglers' routes, Moloney pointed out.

Collectively, sheriffs in the various counties have seized a total of more than twenty cars since July 1st, he

"WOMEN IN POLITICS—ABOVE ALL THEY SHOULD BE WOMANLY"

That's Advice From Oklahoma Woman Assistant Attorney-General

By NEA Service. Oklahoma City, Dec. 6.—"Above all things, a woman should strive to be womanly," Mrs. Kathryn Van Leuven, Oklahoma's first woman office secretary, told Mrs. Kathryn Van Leuven, Oklahoma's first woman assistant attorney general. And she practices what she preaches. For besides being one of the state's leading legal minds, she's a devoted mother. An expert horsewoman. A champion bridge player. And a good cook. Mrs. Van Leuven is anything but a picture of judicial severity. She's a dainty little woman—she's five feet five inches tall and weighs only 112 pounds. She has laughing brown eyes, soft black hair and a youthful face.

In her office she wears a simple blue dress that hangs straight to her ankles and makes her look more like a debutante than a legal light. "Science doesn't eliminate the woman," she says.

Mrs. Van Leuven married Judge Van Leuven when she was 17 and at 19 became a mother. She learned law largely through association with her husband and a group of his brilliant colleagues.

When her husband died she passed a bar examination with the highest credit among 185 applicants. She practiced law for a year, then served as county attorney. Then she came to her present office.

She was appointed by Attorney General Prince Freeling, one of the leaders in the fight against ratification of the woman suffrage amendment in Oklahoma.

"Don't make a political promise to women unless you can deliver the goods—if you don't deliver, they'll get you!" That's Mrs. Van Leuven's political motto and her advice to office-seekers—men and women.

said. Sheriffs Hall of Carrington, Larson of Valley City, Hennessey of Bottineau and Nelson of Coopers town, he mentioned as having been unusually successful in halting the forbidden traffic through their territory.

In the matter of liquor law violations in North Dakota, exclusive of smuggling activities Moloney declared that federal agents had uncovered 245 such violations since February 1, mostly of illicit manufacture and sale of intoxicants. This number does not include fifty cases before the state courts, he pointed out. Action has been started or is contemplated in all of the 245 cases he said.

My Nerves Were Completely Shattered—I Was Weak

Wornout and "All In"; My Business Was Ruined; I Was a Failure in Life; All as a Result of Exhausted Nerve Force

How you may quickly help put new nerve force into wornout exhausted nerve cells, and remarkably increase your strength, power and endurance, often in two weeks time. For sometime I had noticed that I was quite nervous and often had nervous twinges much by trifles. When I was in an irritable mood at home, my wife would occasionally say that this was a sign of age, and this would irritate me still more. I knew I was under constant strain, but I never thought that a strong, vigorous man like me could go all to pieces and become a weak, nervous wreck. But one day this is just what happened to me, and very suddenly I found myself in a state of nervous exhaustion, with a dull aching pain in the lower back part of my head, and sometimes a sense of fullness in the front of my head. Often I was restless and could not sleep well at night, and I noticed that I would get tired very quickly, but my principal warning symptom was a nervous strain, but I never thought that a strong, vigorous man like me could go all to pieces and become a weak, nervous wreck. But one day this is just what happened to me, and very suddenly I found myself in a state of nervous exhaustion, with a dull aching pain in the lower back part of my head, and sometimes a sense of fullness in the front of my head. Often I was restless and could not sleep well at night, and I noticed that I would get tired very quickly, but my principal warning symptom was a nervous strain, but I never thought that a strong, vigorous man like me could go all to pieces and become a weak, nervous wreck. Practical Gifts

FOR EVERYBODY

FURS-the Gift Supreme

They convey a sentiment which few other gifts convey. Their frequent use is a constant reminder of the giver's thoughtfulness, while the long use to which good furs can be put is symbolic of lasting friendship. So, let the gift furs be selected with care and thought. Give no other but furs of dependable quality.

Gordon Furs are the best money can buy and no matter whether it is in the lower or higher priced Furs, dependability is still there. For that reason, we handle only Gordon Furs.

Rich looking Fur Coats of Marmot at $180, of Wallaby at $200, of Opossum at $339, besides all other kinds of Furs that are popular in Coats, this year.

Then there are the stunning new Cape effects, Throws, Scarfs and Chokers with Muffs to match, in Hudson Seal, Black Marten, Lynx, Fox, Wolf, Opossum and Coney. A splendid showing with prices ranging from $15 and upwards.

Give as You Would Like to Receive

It is so easy to select something practical and useful, that it is not only a waste of money but a reflection upon the good taste and intelligence of the recipient when you give her some un-useful trinket, which is seldom used and quickly discarded. A waist, a petticoat, a sweater, stockings, a kimono, a hand-bag; furs or a dainty piece of lingerie, which is always acceptable to any woman.

Such Presents are Easy to Buy

For these holiday stocks offer such a broad collection of practical gifts that your entire list can be checked off without any provoking anticipation, as to whether each present will suit or not. They always suit. They are always welcome, for sensible women like practical gifts.

Visit Our Toyland Now

Make your selections of Toys and Dolls now and we will put them aside for you until Christmas Eve.

Give Her a Pair of Gloves

or a Glove Certificate

Twenty-five years ago, "Hungry Joe," dapper dude with a famous singing voice, was the king of confidence men. One of his jobs was stealing a $1000 bill from Oscar Wilde when Wilde, at the zenith of his fame, toured America with a sunflower in his coat lapel.

Behold the change worked by time! "Hungry Joe," white-haired and bent, is a razor trader, wearing out shoe leather between New York barber shops.

The race of confidence men is almost extinct. Their places have been taken by stock swindlers with handsome office suites. Hungry Joes come and go, but suckers go on forever.

Japan is spending the equivalent of $248,519,224 on her navy in the present fiscal year. Uncle Sam is spending $425,848,079, leading even Great Britain.

On the surface, we seem to be much more in need of disarmament than Japan. But the programs are not far apart, for $1 builds a lot more in Japan than in America.

From the arms-limitation conference will come many such figures. Before taking them at face value, make allowance for varying purchasing power in different countries. English often boast they can build two fighting ships for the price of our one. Probably correct, due to lower standards of living and wages.

Marshal Foch, fed chicken two and three times a day since he came to America, asks if we ever eat anything else.

Cheer up, Ferdinand! Serving chicken to a guest is the way Americans manifest honest hospitality. Like potato salad, without which no church supper is complete. You must admit, our chicken is delectable. Unlike England, which invented spicy sauces to camouflage bad cooking.

Some kind-hearted person should try the marshal on buckwheat cakes and home-made apple pie, distinctively American dishes. If Foch misses them, he goes home without knowing the real America.

A magician in a London music hall gums up one of his tricks and comments, "I'm a little late, like America in the war."

Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," is in the audience. He jumps up and speaks heatedly for 10 minutes. Then the audience applauded, possibly because he was through.

Petty thrusts, coming from other countries, should not annoy us. Their nerves still are on edge. Consider the war from the American viewpoint, not bothering about what others think. Our entrance was wise. If the German flag were flying in Canada and Bill had the British fleet, life in America would be like sitting on tacks.

Pearl divers are out of jobs. At famous Thursday Island, all the pearling boats are laid up. At Broome, West Australia, 100 pearling boats are working, 300 idle.

This stagnation in a romantic and adventurous industry is due to discovery, by Japanese, of the secret of growing pearls artificially.

The fields of romance are passing. How long until textile scientists learn how to make sealskin fur in factories? Stranger things than that are happening in the laboratories.

The market price of husbands seems to vary. Some women know when they are rid of a bad bargain. Others don't.

Toiling in the Colorado beet fields are 1100 children, under 16 years. The stooped-over nature of their work has given 700 of them curvature of the spine or other postural deformities, says the Department of Labor's children's bureau. Four hundred are one to seven years behind in their studies.

Frank H. Godsoll invented a portable bungalow, shipped in the knock-down. It was warm in winter and cool in summer, due to thick asbestos paint which kept heat from passing through the walls. It sold fast—too fast. The idea was good, but it required more capital than Godsoll had figured on. He committed suicide.

A common form of greeting, when two men meet these days, is: "Well, have you picked out your room in the poorhouse yet?"

It's interesting psychology, a variation of doughboys going to the trenches singing ragtime. The Great American Sense of Humor bobs up in the tightest pinch and pulls us through. Americans may be down, but they're never out.

Kicking Horse, Lilliaup Indian chief, is asked what kind of winter he expects. The chief is a Carlisle graduate, with a full-dress suit in his wardrobe. He says:

"I am inclined to think it will be a cold winter. The white man who own stores are putting on their fall sales a couple of weeks earlier than usual, and most of the white women of my acquaintance are already hitting their husbands for new fur coats."

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

North Dakota has a historic background as interesting and as picturesque as that of any state in the union.

Older states take great pride in their wealth of legends, myths and historic incidents, but North Dakotans have almost totally ignored their heritage.

Melvin R. Gilmore is one of the few North Dakotans who have tried to collect and preserve the legendary and the history of our prairie state. He has recently published a brochure which he calls "Prairie Smoke," the title being suggested by the common prairie flower so familiar to residents of the state.

Nothing is such an important factor in cultivating loyalty to one's home state, as a background history, legend and literature. Why does a Virginian feel such unrestrained pride in the state of his birth? Why do natives of other states so frequently lay claim to being "born in Virginia"? It isn't because Virginia is a more beautiful, or a more fertile, or a more prosperous state than others. It is due solely to the state's picturesque history and legendry.

Yet North Dakota has a historic background scarcely less interesting, and probably not one resident in 100 could even name the native tribes of North Dakota and roughly outline the territory they occupied.

According to Mr. Gilmore, the Dakota Indians occupied, roughly, the lower third of the state, or that territory that lies south of the Northern Pacific line. In the east and northeast were the Chippewas, and in the northwest corner, the Mandans, Hidatsas and Arikaras who had an alliance for mutual protection.

Mr. Gilmore's book deals with the folklore of these Indian tribes, and with the trees, the flowers, the birds and the animals of our prairies.

No man can read Mr. Gilmore's book without being a little prouder that he is a North Dakotan. Surely no "native son" of California and no member of one of the "First Families of Virginia" has any more glorious heritage than a descendant of one of the real pioneers of the great plains.—Fargo Forum.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, The President of the United States, by his solemn proclamation, has set apart the week of December fourth to December tenth, inclusive, 1921, as AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK, and WHEREAS, such splendid organizations as the American Legion and the National Educational Association of the United States have undertaken the task of furthering this great movement, and WHEREAS, since statehood the commonwealth of North Dakota has ever been mindful of the great and lasting benefits of a well developed and state-wide system of public schools, it is especially fitting that we, as citizens of this great state, should heed the advice and suggestions contained in our President's proclamation:

THEREFORE, I, R. A. Nestos, Governor of the State of North Dakota, do set apart the week of:

December Fourth to Tenth, Inclusive, 1921

IT IS FURTHER RECOMMENDED that all the schools of the state, as well as all public bodies and organizations, arrange demonstrations in the form of programs, or otherwise to especially emphasize the value of our educational institutions, not alone to the community, but to the State and Nation as well, and, further, that our school facilities in their many forms may be brought to the attention of those citizens who have not heretofore enjoyed the advantages of our school system. All, to the end that new and old citizens alike may learn to more thoroughly appreciate and honor our State and Nation, and to understand and feel the true significance of the title: "CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA."

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of North Dakota to be affixed at the Capitol at Bismarck this Fifth day of December, A. D. 1921.

(Signed) R. A. NESTOS, Governor.

(Seal) By the Governor: (Signed) THOMAS HALL, Secretary of State.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS

ELECTIONS IN CANADA TODAY WOMEN VOTING

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 6.—The tariff again looms up as the big issue in the Canadian elections to be held today, December 6, to choose a new federal Parliament for the Dominion.

In that respect, the situation is a repetition of that of 1911, the last "normal" general election held in Canada when the political struggle was decided on purely political issues. The tariff, then, as now, was the main question.

The election of 1917, the only one since held, was purely a wartime expedient with no political questions involved.

Another and very interesting and important feature of the 1921 election is that, for the first time in the history of the Dominion, women will vote on full equality with men. The Election Act of 1919 conferred the full right to vote upon all British subjects, men or women, who were 21 years old and had lived in Canada at least one year.

Many thousands of women had voted in the election of 1917 but their number was limited to the wives, mothers, widows and sisters of soldiers and in army nurses or women who were themselves engaged in war work. This, however, paved the way to the full suffrage which the women of Canada will, for the first time, exercise next Tuesday.

Apprehension that Canada may fall under the economic domination of her great and wealthy neighbor, the United States, is again a battle cry of the coming election as it was in the campaign of 1911 when the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, went down to defeat when he expounded to the people to ratify the reciprocity agreement which had then just been concluded with the United States government.

It will be recalled that in that campaign of 10 years ago the Conservative Party, under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden, fought the reciprocity treaty on the ground that "truck or trade with the Yankees" was taking the first step toward economic servitude to the United States. The Conservatives were returned with a huge majority in Parliament and reciprocity died a sudden death.

Today, Arthur Meighen, the youthful Premier and head of the Government Party, and his followers have told the electors that the only way to save Canadian industries was to maintain a protective tariff and that, otherwise, the factories and plants in Canada will move to the other side of the international boundary and the Dominion will find herself bound to the apron strings of the United States.

There are three main opposition parties, the Liberal, Progressive and Labor, of which the two former are

STAGE MORALITY—IT'S ONLY HYPOCRISY, SHE SAYS

BY ALICE ROHE.

It is merely a question of hypocrisy. Life off the stage gives the keynote to the drama—some nations are merely less hypocritical than others.

"Shall I act in America? I hope so. It is this country that has the future of art in its hands. What will I do? I have just completed a dramatization of Plautus's Solanus, to be given to a musical accompaniment. I will introduce a dance also to express this great spirit of ancient Carthage."

Looking from the French artist in her cloth of gold gown, to the American artist in the rose gold embroidered robes, I wonder—

The one who stopped at no sacrifice, even renunciation, which love could offer to inspire the poet—the other, society woman, famous actress, whose "coming back" to the stage after unprecedented artistic vicissitudes was even a greater sensation than her original entrance.

Could the stage offer greater dramas than the lives of these women talking across the tea table?

It is regarded as strongest. They are all urging a modified tariff system but their proposals range from a tariff for revenue only to a distinct trend toward free trade.

The Progressives are headed by Thomas Alexander Crerar, formerly Minister of Agriculture in Sir Robert Borden's Union government. He has been identified with the grain business in the west and his platform calls for modification of the tariff to suit the farmers who, feels that he is carrying a heavy load of indirect taxation to protect the industries of the East.

The Liberal group is headed by William Lyon Mackenzie King who was chosen as standard bearer when Sir Wilfrid Laurier died in 1919. Its main strength is in Quebec. The party includes a few devotees of free trade but its general sentiment, as voiced by its leader is in favor of tariff for revenue rather than for protection.

Freckles and His Friends

LIGGETT TELLS HOW HE CAME BACK!

"Never Lose Your Nerve!" Says Drug Store King, Back on Throne

By NEA Service
Boston, Dec. 6.—"Keep your nerve. Never lose confidence in yourself, no matter how black the skies look. And most important of all, never do anything to forfeit the confidence of others."

This from Louis K. Liggett, the most remarkable comeback in the history of finance. Liggett is head of the United Drug company and its chain of 1,000 retail drug stores in the United States, Canada and England.

He has just emerged from a financial storm that threatened, for a time to sweep away his private fortune.

Last July Liggett's financial affairs were assigned to the care of trustees, at his own request. Business depression had so hit his stock holdings that he was forced to liquidate them.

"Simultaneously with the announcement by the trustees that they were liquidating my affairs, I sent a letter to every stockholder in the company explaining, frankly, all the facts," says Liggett.

"Lanks" that carried my loans immediately expressed confidence in me. Letters and telegrams poured into my office from thousands of my drugist friends from every American state and from Canada and England.

"Offers of help of every kind were made. Checks came by the score and thousands of dollars worth of securities were turned over to me."

Liggett felt that, however grateful, he must decline this generosity. He could not afford to risk the welfare of his friends by involving them in his own financial predicament.

But his refusal did not satisfy them. Without consulting him, the 10,000 Retail agents formed the Retail Drug City Trust Fund, a board of trustees was organized and captains were appointed in every state.

Within a week trust certificates were offered to those who cared to subscribe for them for cash. They were to bear interest at 6 per cent, payable with principal, when Liggett could take them up.

And like magic the necessary fund

LOUIS K. LIGGETT

was raised. Liggett went to the original trustees and asked them to notify the banks that their loans would be paid in full.

Unheard of Tribute
It was an unheard of tribute to a captain of finance in the affairs of American business.

Liggett never lost confidence in himself and his friends never lost confidence in Liggett. That's how he has won from the day he swore that he would save the idea of unity in the world drug store trade—an idea that took form on a train between Seattle and Spokane.

"Even my most splendid dream of that day has been surpassed," Liggett says, "but through it all, in sunshine and storm, I have never for one moment doubted the ultimate success of the undertaking."

"There are boys, thousands of them, who can accomplish as much, or more, but they must believe in themselves straight through."

PICKING CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS BOOKS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Author of "Adventures of the Twins"

Christmas time! Gift time! Toy time! Book time! Yes, by all means, let there be books, books, and yet more books!

There is no gift that brings joy so enduring, so far-reaching, so real to young and old, as a book.

Children are never too young for books. Teach them the book habit early. And don't buy a book too far over his head for the child to understand. He'll get this idea that all books are hard to understand and turn his attention elsewhere for amusement.

Guide him, to be sure, but let the habit take root and it will grow fast.

Cloth Books for Babies
Baby has a cloth book that he can't tear, with bright pictures. Pictures, pictures, and pictures! There cannot be too many. I cannot overestimate the value of pictures in books for young children. Children in cities, children in flats, children who never get to see the world outside of a city street.

For tots we used to stop at Mother Goose. There was a great gap. Not so now!

Dear old Mother Goose is still invaluable in her many, lovely, dressed-up editions, but there are other books that young children adore. For instance, the little bedtime stories of fairy and feathered folk. There are "Peter Rabbit" and other books by Beatrix Potter, up through the more elaborate series of the same name, many of which are published nightly in newspapers, and appearing eventually in attractive book form that children love. And there are still more books for tots.

Give Him Poetry, Too
Mix Kidney's book that a boy would like to read. Buy in great poetry. Give "Purley and Chomley" and see if he (or she) doesn't love it. It's by Ros. Fryman.

Or buy "A Child's Garden of Verses" by Stephenson, or "Riley's 'Raggedy Man'." Then to one Tommy or Lou will go to sleep with them under his pillow. There's also "The Poesy King" by Kate Douglas Wiggin. I must add to the list for tots that Aesop's fables are easily understood and there are many beautiful editions.

For children from 7 to 12 there are first the standard books of fairy tales, tales from "Arabian Nights," "Greek Myths" by Kingsley, "Anderson's and Grimm's 'Fairytales,'" and "Ruskin's 'King of the Golden River.'" Keep the happy note uppermost in choosing fairy tales for very young children. The Scandinavian tales such as Grimm and Andersen are a bit sinister in places for the child too young. The Oz books are bright and will stretch the imagination till it aches.

Jungles and Desert Isles
It's a joy to mention Kipling's "Just So Stories" and his "Jungle Books." Dr. Van Loon's "Ancient Man" and other fascinating books of history for children, "Robinson Crusoe," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Gulliver's Travels," "King Arthur's Knights," and the bound "St. Nicholas." There are many fine tales, too, for children over 12. Stephenson's "Treasure Island," Cooper's "Leatherstocking Tales," and Sir Walter Scott's "Tales of Knight-hood," including "Ivanhoe."

The Labor group derives its main strength from the cities of the East. When the parliament of Canada was recently dissolved, as a prelude to the general elections the relative standing of the parties in the House of Commons was as follows: Government Party, 134; Liberal Party, 81; Progressive Party, 16; Independents, 2. Two additional seats which would have brought the membership up to 235 were vacant.

The membership of Parliament is distributed as follows: Quebec, 63; Ontario, 82; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 11; Manitoba, 17; British Columbia, 13; Prince Edward Island, 4; Saskatchewan, 14; Alberta, 12; Yukon Territory, 1; Total, 235.

Roll the dough very thin. Spread lightly with butter and then with a generous supply of orange marmalade. Roll up like a jelly roll and cut into inch slices. Bake in hot oven till a delicate brown. The suggestion of bitterness in the marmalade is delightful with tea. Tiny cinnamon rolls are made the same way. The sheet of dough sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon, rolled, and then rolled and sliced.

Tea Delicacies

Sister Mary's Kitchen
Delicious wafers for afternoon tea may be made from ordinary pie crust. When pies are high the little wafer takes very attractive shape the pie crust is baked in a shallow pan.

As these little wafers are very thin they should be small. Dough should be thinner than the common pie crust and should be rolled out very thin.

To make dough, use 1 cup flour and 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar, and 1/4 cup water. Rub butter in flour and salt. Add water, a few drops at a time, until dough is moist enough to roll together. Put on a floured wooden board or marble slab and roll out to an inch thick. Cut with a round cutter. Dampen slightly, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and bake in hot oven. When crust is set add 1/2 cup or two of water to the pan. Bake until sugar is melted and a pile straw color.

Pastry Sandwich
Another party is made in the form of a sandwich.

Roll rich pie crust very thin, less than 1/4 inch thick. Cut out dates and English walnuts, all cleaned with enough water to make a stiff sticky spread that can hold the spread of dough together. Cut out a circle and place the nuts or dates on it. Take a second circle and place it on top. Roll up like a sandwich and bake in hot oven.

Pastry Rolls
Roll out dough very thin, less than 1/4 inch thick. Cut out a circle and place the nuts or dates on it. Take a second circle and place it on top. Roll up like a sandwich and bake in hot oven.

Apricot and Coconut Tartlets
Roll dough very thin and cut in three inch circles. Moisten each corner and roll over to meet in the center. Cover the joint with a little sugar or jam. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes. Remove and let cool. Put on a plate and serve on each corner of a plate with one apricot, freshly washed and peeled. Any other combination of fruit and jam may be used.

Raspberries, strawberries, and blueberries are also good. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes. Remove and let cool. Put on a plate and serve on each corner of a plate with one raspberry, strawberry, or blueberry, freshly washed and peeled. Any other combination of fruit and jam may be used.
